

Holiday Broadcasts on Shortwave

Saturday 20 December 2025 to Thursday 1 January 2026

Version 2 (Issued 23 December 2025)

This is a selected list of seasonal and non-seasonal programming scheduled to be broadcast mostly (with a few exceptions) on shortwave over the holiday period. Regular weekly music programming where no special advance programme information has been provided are not usually included in this list (although there may be some exceptions!), however please refer instead to my Music on Shortwave list. The latest edition of both lists can be found at: <https://app.box.com/s/kbdxb4c5lwpju0kpoi27aiwc35br2g2a> (or for short <http://tinyurl.com/shortwaveprograms>). The Music on Shortwave list can also be found by searching the SWLing Post at <https://swling.com/blog/>.

As new information becomes available, I will issue updates and post to the above permanent links - announcing these in social media posts. Minor updates (eg small corrections) may be issued as unannounced incremental versions so you may find it worthwhile to check the above permanent links from time to time for the latest information. The changelog on the next page will summarise changes from previous versions for ease of reference. (Note that information about programmes already broadcast prior to the issue dates of updates will be retained for reference purposes and for listeners who perhaps have made IQ recordings for later playback).

With thanks to all sources as mentioned below: the Broadcasts in English booklet published by the British DX Club; to Glenn Hauser and contributors to the WOR iog mail list; contributors to the BDXC-UK and NASWA iog mail lists for current frequency information; to Hansjörg Biener's DX Digest at <http://www.biener-media.de/biener-rundfunk.htm#rundfunk>; to contributors to Thomas Witherspoon's excellent <https://swling.com/blog/> website; to schedules information from Channel 292 published at <https://www.channel292.de>; official WRMI schedules published at <https://docs.google.com/spreadsheets/d/1pcLEX8kisirOPqIXHDAq6gympKUgDj0SIb96qce2kGGQ> and the WRMI Facebook page; the unofficial WRMI schedules published by Guerro at <https://www.guerrogram.org/home/schedules>; more unofficial WRMI schedules published by Tony Rogers at <https://www.dxguides.info/p/sw.html>; and also other Shortwave Guides published by Tony Rogers for the BDXC-UK at <https://bdxc.org.uk/articles.html>; Shortwave Radio Gold schedules published at <https://shortwaveradio.de/en>; and programme listings on BBC World Service and on RNZ National & RNZ Pacific webpages. A special thank you to those programme producers who kindly supplied programme information direct or via their websites, and those who responded to my direct enquiries, and others, including: Bill Tilford (FTIOM & UBMP and his Shortwave Spotlight column in December NASWA Journal); Fred Waterer (Programming Matters FB group and his column in December's Spectrum Monitor); Terry Colgan (Texas Radio Shortwave); Tony Pavick (Pop Shop Radio); Rafael Martínez; Jeff Silvers (VOSR Int); Jen (Unique Radio); Sean Welsh (Audio Extravaganza); R Six International (Christmas/NY Programme News at https://syndication.radiosix.com/Radio_News_699.pdf); Marion Webster & Kristina (Marion's Attic); Radio Igloo; Fred Moe (Imaginary Stations); Bob le-Roi (Bob's 60's Splash and via Redsands Radio website at http://www.radiolondon.co.uk/redsands/Splash%20RL/Splash_RL.htm); Marco "Mac" Johansson (R Blacksmith Knoll); Jack (Weekend Music R); Herbert Visser (SuperClan R); Brice Avery (Radio Tumbiril, Encore Classical Music); Reiner Palma (Radio Marabu); Aart & Team Radio Delta (R Delta Int'l); Seher Cemre TURAN (TRT, Voice of Türkiye); Roseanna (RNEI); Luca Trifin (R Carpathia); Christian Ghibaudo; Daniel Riobóo (REE, R Exterior de España); Eugene Kornychkin.

I hope that everybody can find at least one programme of interest in this list. Where possible, do drop the programme producers an email and let them know that you listened - even a short note will mean a lot!

All days/times mentioned are in UTC. All frequencies are in kHz.

- 1206-1300 BBC WS (to S & SE Asia): The Documentary - United In Space: How we built the ISS
❖ 12080 and 15295 (A'Seela, Oman); 21565 (Madagascar)
📻 United in Space unveils the remarkable story of one of humanity's greatest ever feats – building a home among the stars – the International Space Station. Celebrating 25 unbroken years of humans living in space, former international director of the UK Space Agency, Dr Alice Bunn charts how nations put aside differences to create the ultimate symbol of human ingenuity and collaboration – a space station orbiting our planet that has been home to over 300 people from 24 different nations. Using mission control audio, news archive and personal stories, Alice illuminates acts of epic survival, humour and selflessness that made the station a reality. She investigates why a near fatal disaster on the Russian Mir space station spurred nations to commit to the ISS. She reveals how a Moscow basement and Hollywood royalty sparked bonding between Russians and Americans. She discovers how quick thinking and plastic tape saved the station, allowing it to grow to the size of a football pitch and how one astronaut came within seconds of drowning in space. Looking into the future, Alice explores how the legacy of the ISS will be carried on by a new generation of private space stations, which have the power to push back the boundaries of science for the good of all humanity. The reduced gravity offers enormous possibilities from creating materials impossible to create on Earth - these range from ultrafast semiconductors for use in computing, to life-saving vaccines, and most remarkably of all entire human organs for life-saving transplants. (BBC WS website)

- 1300-1400 WRMI: Radio Mystery Theatre
❖ 15770 (WRMI, Okeechobee, USA)
📻 Today's episode is from The Whistler Show from 1949: "Letter from Cynthia".
It's Christmas Eve and a doctor in a small hospital suddenly gets an unusual responsibility. For more than a year Neil's resentment of Charlie Bennett has smoulder and now the girl at the switchboard has told you that he's here in the hospital where you are interning, the victim of an automobile accident that you have to prepare the drugs that might save his life, might. As you run upstairs to the laboratory your thoughts go back to that night more than a year ago. The circumstances were quite different then for that night although Neil didn't realize it, he was at the mercy of Charlie Bennett...

0006-0030 BBC WS (to S Asia): BBC OS Conversations - Surviving an avalanche

❖ 6035 (Tashkent, Uzbekistan) and 6155 (A'Seela, Oman)

¶ Avalanches can happen any time of the year. Already, in recent months, we've seen climbers perish in Italy's Dolomite mountains as well as climbers and local guides in the Himalayas. The peak season for these huge and potentially lethal movements of mass amounts of snow is now underway in the northern hemisphere. To understand the dangers, and what it's like to experience an avalanche, we hear from three survivors. For mountaineer Cory Richards in South Africa, the impact of an avalanche while climbing the world's 13th tallest mountain in Pakistan, in 2011, left him and his two climbing partners thinking they were all about to die. "Probably what carried us mostly was the air blast and the debris as it started moving across the flat ground," says Cory. "It picked us up and threw us several hundred feet. We were all tied together and we all ended up partially buried." Fortunately for Cory and our other guests, JT Holmes and Benton Hodges in the United States, they survived. Benton was even part of the rescue mission to save his friend. But an avalanche can have more than a physical impact and we also hear about the effects on everyone's mental health, sometimes years after the event. (BBC WS Website)

- 1400-2300 CBC Music: Joy to the World - Euroradio Christmas Music Day 2025
 ❖ <https://www.cbc.ca/listen/live-radio>
 ¶ Paolo Pietropaolo will be your guide for this spectacular lineup of Christmas concerts originating from the countries of the European Broadcasting Union.
1400: Stockholm, Sweden
 The day begins at the Berwaldhallen in Stockholm, where the Swedish Radio Symphony Orchestra and Chorus present Parts 1, 2 and 3 of the Christmas Oratorio by J.S. Bach, with Kaspars Putniņš conducting. The soloists include Canadian tenor Josh Lovell.
1500: Copenhagen, Denmark
 Next stop: the 18th-century Garrison Church in the centre of Copenhagen. Marcus Creed leads the Danish National Vocal Ensemble through a program of carols by Scandinavian composers Jan Sandström, Peter Erasmus Lange-Müller and Gustaf Nordqvist.
1600: Riga, Latvia
 Soprano Annija Ādamsone joins the Sōla Choir for the Latvian premiere of Eriks Ešēvalds' Zurich Mass, alongside works by W.A. Mozart and Maurice Ravel. You'll also hear saxophonist Aigars Raumanis and organist Aigars Reinis. Their concert comes to you from Riga Cathedral.
1700: Vienna, Austria
 From the famed Konzerthaus in Vienna, the Gabetta Consort performs a selection of gems from the Baroque era: works by Antonio Vivaldi, Alessandro Marcello, Pietro Antonio Locatelli and Francesco Geminiani.

1800: Berlin, Germany

The RIAS Chamber Choir and conductor Justin Doyle fill Saint Hedwig's Cathedral in Berlin with Benjamin Britten's beloved A Ceremony of Carols and Francis Poulenc's Litanies à la Vierge noire. They're joined by organist Marcel Andreas Ober and harpist Anna Viechtl.

1900: Helsinki, Finland

The day continues at Kallio Church in Helsinki, where the musicians of Ensemble Gamut play a selection of Finnish folk songs, complete with improvisation and electronic soundscapes. Joining them are Juho Myllylä on blockflute and Ilkka Heinonen on jouhikko.

2000: London, England

The BBC Singers and conductor Sofi Jeannin: music sung at Vespers in the last seven days of the Advent season. Their concert comes to you from St. Paul's Church, Knightsbridge, and includes new works by Kornélia Nemcová and Millicent B. James.

2100: Kyiv, Ukraine

From the Ukrainian Radio Broadcasting House in Kyiv, conductor Yulia Tkach leads the Platon Maiboroda Academic Choir through the Christmas Oratorio by Camille Saint-Saëns and a selection of traditional Ukrainian folk songs.

2200: Munich, Germany

The day concludes at the Prince Regent Theatre in Munich, where the Munich Radio Orchestra and the Regensburg Cathedral Choir perform some of the best-known music of the season, with Oscar Jockel conducting. Their special guest is baritone Benjamin Appl.

¶ It's just over 30 years since the brick game was introduced to the world at a department store in London. Made of 54 wooden blocks stacked into a tower in rows of three by three, each player takes a turn to remove a block from the tower and place it at the top. When the tower falls, the game is over. Surya Elango speaks to its British designer Leslie Scott about how a family game that started in her parent's home in 1970s Ghana, became an international hit. By 1986, the game was successfully introduced into the North America market at a time when video games were taking off. It's now in the US National Toy Hall of Fame having sold millions worldwide. Leslie went on to create 40 other games.

- 1832-1900 BBC WS (to W&C Africa): the Conversation - Female philanthropists
❖ 15400 and 15420 (Ascension Island)
¶ In the season of giving, Datshiane Navanayagam talks to philanthropists from France and Nigeria about using their wealth to help others thrive. Historically philanthropic giving has been dominated by men, but as women's global wealth grows so does their capacity for donating money to charitable causes and enterprise. The Conversation talks to a French heiress who felt compelled to give away her money following the death of her son in a helicopter crash and a former corporate banker from Nigeria who's galvanising businesswomen from the African diaspora to invest in the futures of women on the continent. Albina du Boisrouvay was born into extreme wealth as granddaughter of a Bolivian tin magnate and daughter of a French aristocrat. She went on to pursue an alternative career as a film director and when her 24 year old son François-Xavier Bagnoud died, Albina sold three-quarters of her assets and founded FXB Foundation in his name. Its mission is to fight poverty, AIDs and support orphans and vulnerable children. Since 1989, FXB Foundation has impacted the lives of 20 million people. She's recently written about her extraordinary life in a book called Phoenix Rising. Former corporate banker, Dr Anino Emuwa is from Nigeria and managing director at Avandis Consulting in France. She co-founded Women in Philanthropy and Impact Africa, bringing together women in business from the African diaspora to use the power of philanthropy to drive sustainable development. With only 0.4% of foundation grants globally directed toward organisations addressing women's issues, WIPIA approaches philanthropy through a gendered lens and supports women to lead scalable change in Africa.

❖ 12080 (via A'Seela, Oman) 15295 (via A'Seela, Oman) 21565 (via Madagascar)

¶ In 1956, one of the world's most beloved children's toys went on sale for the first time, but its origins were surprising. The modelling clay had started out as a household cleaning product. In the days when homes were heated by coal fires, it was used to clean soot and dirt from wallpaper. But its manufacturer ran into trouble as oil and gas heating became increasingly popular. Then Kay Zufall, whose brother-in-law owned the firm, had an idea. Her children enjoyed using the putty to make ornaments and jewellery so she suggested the company switch markets and give the clay a new name. Playdoh was born. According to the current brand owners, more than three billion cans have been sold in 80 countries around the world. Peg Roberts, Kay's daughter, tells Jane Wilkinson how her mother had the idea. (BBC WS webpages)

- 1832-1900 BBC WS (to W&C Africa): In the Studio - Michael Symmons Roberts' Christmas Card Poem
❖ 15400 and 15420 (Ascension Island)
¶ There's a tradition among poets to write a poem to put inside the Christmas cards they send. So, the BBC World Service has commissioned one specially from the poet, dramatist and novelist, Michael Symmons Roberts whose Christian faith is important to his identity and work. But his art is not a direct expression of this, and instead he follows the poet Emily Dickinson's instruction to 'Tell all the truth but tell it slant'. Michael has just become a grandfather, so feels keenly the happiness of the arrival of a cherished child, creating a parallel between his own life and the Christmas story of the birth of Jesus. For In the Studio Julian May follows Michael's creative process as he grapples huge spiritual and personal themes – distilling them to a length which can fit on a Christmas card: a daunting but joyful task. The programme begins with London's Oxford Street, where consumerism triggers preparations a full three months before Christmas - and ends with the sealing of the Christmas cards before they are popped into the post box.  ¶ It was Back to the Future II that made a generation of children dream of travelling by hoverboard. In the 1989 film, the hero Marty McFly escapes from his arch nemesis Biff by jumping on a flying skateboard. But it wasn't until 2011 that inventor Shane Chen came up with the next best thing – a motorised skateboard that moves intuitively and gives the rider a feeling of floating. The creation became the must-have toy of 2015 and social media was flooded with videos of celebrities trying it out. But the hoverboard never brought riches for Shane. He tells Vicky Farncombe how cheap knock-offs stole his profits and caused fires and accidents.

¶ Held in the candlelit Chapel of King's College, Cambridge, this service marks for many people around the world the beginning of Christmas. It is based around nine Bible readings which tell the story of the loving purposes of God. They are interspersed with carols old and new, sung by the world-famous Chapel Choir who also lead the congregation in traditional Christmas hymns.

¶ Since Christmas 1953, the NDR radio program "Greetings on Board" has formed a bridge between seafarers at sea and their families in Germany: Seafarers send greetings home, and their families have the opportunity to wish their loved ones on the high seas a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. To ensure that crews can receive the traditional broadcast even in distant ports on the world's oceans, NDR has rented additional shortwave frequencies specifically for Christmas Eve, which will carry the greetings around the world. Hosted this year (for the first time) by Susanne Stichler.

¶ Kennedy and Khrushchev: A covert convoy of ships carries Soviet missiles across the Atlantic, while American U-2 planes spy over Cuba and the sea routes. And as the ships arrive, Khrushchev writes to Kennedy about the divided city of Berlin. It's a distraction tactic. But the American spy planes photograph an alarming development. Hosts Nina Khrushcheva and Max Kennedy, relatives of the superpower leaders, tell the personal and political history of the Cuban Missile Crisis.

0006-0100 BBC WS (to S Asia): The Documentary - United In Space: How we built the ISS

❖ 6035 (Tashkent, Uzbekistan) and 6155 (A'Seela, Oman)

¶ United in Space unveils the remarkable story of one of humanity's greatest ever feats – building a home among the stars – the International Space Station. Celebrating 25 unbroken years of humans living in space, former international director of the UK Space Agency, Dr Alice Bunn charts how nations put aside differences to create the ultimate symbol of human ingenuity and collaboration – a space station orbiting our planet that has been home to over 300 people from 24 different nations. Using mission control audio, news archive and personal stories, Alice illuminates acts of epic survival, humour and selflessness that made the station a reality. She investigates why a near fatal disaster on the Russian Mir space station spurred nations to commit to the ISS. She reveals how a Moscow basement and Hollywood royalty sparked bonding between Russians and Americans. She discovers how quick thinking and plastic tape saved the station, allowing it to grow to the size of a football pitch and how one astronaut came within seconds of drowning in space. Looking into the future, Alice explores how the legacy of the ISS will be carried on by a new generation of private space stations, which have the power to push back the boundaries of science for the good of all humanity. The reduced gravity offers enormous possibilities from creating materials impossible to create on Earth - these range from ultrafast semiconductors for use in computing, to life-saving vaccines, and most remarkably of all entire human organs for life-saving transplants.

 ❖ 12080 (via A’Seela, Oman) 15295 (via A’Seela, Oman) 21565 (via Madagascar)
 ¶ The Tamagotchi was first released in Japan in 1996 after it was developed by Akihiro Yokoi and his colleagues at his toy development company. Measuring just a few centimetres long, the egg-shaped digital gadget was home to a series of pixelated alien pets. Owners had to feed, clean and play with their pets by pressing three tiny buttons. Looking after your Tamagotchi and seeing them evolve was thrilling for many children and its popularity quickly spread from Japan across the world. Almost 100 million Tamagotchis have been sold in more than 50 countries. Akihiro Yokoi tells Emily Uchida Finch how the hit toy was born, and the impact its prevalence has had on his life and career.

It's Christmas Eve and a doctor in a small hospital suddenly gets an unusual responsibility.

For more than a year Neil's resentment of Charlie Bennett has smoulder and now the girl at the switchboard has told you that he's here in the hospital where you are interning, the victim of an automobile accident that you have to prepare the drugs that might save his life, might. As you run upstairs to the laboratory your thoughts go back to that night more than a year ago. The circumstances were quite different then for that night although Neil didn't realize it, he was at the mercy of Charlie Bennett...

¶ In October 1984, as the market for mobile phones was just opening up, one man decided it would be useful if the new technology could be used to send and receive short, electronic messages. But colleagues of Friedhelm 'Fred' Hillebrand - an engineer for Germany's Deutsche Telekom - told him the system's 160-character limit for text messages rendered it "useless". After spending an evening typing-up birthday, Christmas and fax messages Fred proved them wrong, and within 20 years the SMS or short message service had changed the way we communicate around the world. Fred Hillebrand tells Jacqueline Paine how text messaging very nearly didn't take off until it was discovered by young people.

 ¶ How access to fitness improves women's lives. The benefits of being involved in group fitness activities such as gym classes or recreational sport can have a positive impact on both physical and mental health. Yet many women still face barriers to regular exercise. Ella Al-Shamahi speaks to two women in India and Uganda who've created grass roots fitness communities exclusively for women. Mildred Apenyo is the founder of FitcliqueAfrica - a women-only gym which is the first of its kind in Uganda. She says that issues such as battling for space, safety and finding socially acceptable sports outfits makes attending the gym a daunting prospect for many women across East Africa. Her Kampala-based startup is focused on the overall wellness and safety of women rather than the attainment of the 'ideal body' with classes ranging from strength training to African Yoga and even self-defence workshops. Swetha Subbiah co-founded Sisters In Sweat in 2017, in Bangalore with a mission to address the concerning percentage of women in India who, for a myriad of reasons are dropping out of sport after school or college. She points out that the landscape of organised recreational sport for women in India is virtually non-existent and wants to ensure that women have a platform to participate in and enjoy playing a sport with a community of like-minded individuals.

 - ¶ New Year's Eve in Sydney is more than the twelve o'clock show. It's an event that takes over an entire city. Fireworks are launched from the Sydney Harbour Bridge now over 90 years old and the Sydney Opera House. There are barges positioned across the harbour, there are rooftops around the city with pyrotechnics, as well as lighting projections on the boats on the harbour, Luna Park and the bridge pylons. It's a year in the planning and one family has been designing the fireworks for this spectacular night for the last 26 years. Foti Fireworks is an award winning pyrotechnics family business originating in 1793 in Italy. They still have family members operating today, not only in Italy, but in Hong Kong and Sydney bringing joy and hope to people all over the world. Regina Botros looks back at last year's fireworks and looks forward to this year's extravaganza

 ¶ Kennedy and Khrushchev: Nuclear war is terrifyingly close as the United States and Soviet Union are on the brink of global catastrophe. Hosts Nina Khrushcheva and Max Kennedy, relatives of the superpower leaders, tell the personal and political history of the 1962 Cuban Missile Crisis. When more than 40,000 Soviet troops move into Cuba in secret, we explore what drives US President John F Kennedy and Soviet leader Nikita Khrushchev. With leading historians, Max and Nina describe how the crisis moves beyond Khrushchev and Kennedy's control as a U-2 spy plane is shot down over Cuba, while out at sea a Soviet submarine captain is seconds away from firing a nuclear torpedo at a US Navy ship. Conversations between Max and Nina follow the personal relationship between Kennedy and Khrushchev, from their first meeting as world leaders in Vienna in 1961 to JFK's assassination in 1963.
